MEN OF SOUTH HERE SECEDE; TSEN REGIME DISCREDITED

Meeting Yesterday Of Leaders Decided To Issue Manifesto

SOLONS SCORED

Canton Parliamentarians Also Considered Not Representative

The remnants of the Canton Administration and of the defunct Parliament will be discredited by the Southern leaders in Shanghai, according to decisions reached at a historical meeting held at the home of Dr. Sun Yat-sen, former Generalissimo of the Military Government in Canton, yesterday. Resolutions were passed to issue a manifesto enumerating the crimes of General Tsen Chun-hsun, the only Administrative Councillor now in Canton, and to discredit the action of the few Parliamentarians who claim to be the Legislative Body of the South.

THOSE AT MEETING

Among those present at the meeting were Dr. Sun; Mr. Tang Shao-yi, Southern peace delegate; Dr. Wu Ting-fang, Minister of Foreign Affairs and Acting Minister of Finance; General Li Lieh-chun, representing General Tang Chi-yao, Tuchun of Yunnan; Chao Yi-yu, representing the Tuchun of Shensi; Messrs. C. T. Wang, Wu Ching-lien, Chu Fu-cheng and Lin Shen, Speakers and Vice-speakers of the Senate and the Lower House respectively; Wang Shu-yung, representing the Tuchun of Kweichow; Tan Cheng, representing the Tuchun of Hunan; Hsia Teh, representing the Tuchun of Szechuen; Tien Chung-lung, representing Yunnan; and Chen Chi, representing Western Hupeh.

The manifesto will be addressed to the diplomatic corps in Peking and the various provincial authorities, pointing out the illegality of any acts of the Canton military and legislative authorities in view of the departure from the seat of government of the large number of executive officers and Parliamentarians.

TO DRAFT MANIFESTO

A committee was appointed to draft the manifesto, which will practically amount to a declaration of independence of the provinces of Yunnan, Kweichow, Hunan, Shensi, Szechuen and Hupeh from the Canton administration. The acts of the Southern government will hereafter not be binding on these provinces, the manifesto will say.

Though apparently informal, the meeting yesterday at Rue Moliere assumed the aspect of a conference of the Supreme Council of the Southern Constitutionalists. Not since the days of the abdication of the little emperor in 1912 has a meeting in Shanghai assumed more importance than this. Practically all the participants at the meeting yesterday played important roles at that time.

Will Not Handle Munitions Bound For Erin's Isle

(Reuter's Service)

London, May 31.—The "Triple Alliance" (miners, railwaymen and transport workers) Sub-Committee has passed a resolution "that the position mentioned in the letter from the Nation Union of railwaymen, with regard to Ireland, warrants consideration of the problem by the organised trade-union movement of the whole of Great Britain, and that the matter therefore shall be referred to the Trade Union Congress Parliamentary Committee urgently requesting that a special trade union congress be convened early, so that the attitude of British labor towards the production and handling of munitions of war for Ireland and Poland may be determined."

The above-mentioned letter refers to the executive of the National Union of Railwaymen's consideration of the refusal of Irish members of the Union to handle munitions, and the executive's decision (taken on May 27) to refer the matter to the Triple Alliance.

Biggest Ship Yet Built In Shanghai Will Be Launched This Afternoon At Kiangnan Dock & Engineering Works

MADAME CRANE TO CHRISTEN SHIPPING BOARD LEVIATHAN

Wife Of United States Minister To Peking Will Officiate

SHIP HAS LARGE TONNAGE

Is One Of Four Being Constructed By Local Government Plant

Shipbuilding records in Shanghai will be shattered this afternoon when the steamer "Mandarin," one of the four vessels contracted for locally by the United States Shipping Board, glides into the Whangpoo.

The launching takes place at 3:15 o'clock at the Kiangnan Dock and Engineering Works, builders of the vessels. Mrs. Charles R. Crane, wife of the new United States Minister to Peking, will officiate at the ceremony and christen the new vessel.

A large number of local officials, members of the Consular body, of the American community and others, have been invited to attend the ceremonies. The tender Alexandra, to convey guests to the dockyard, will leave the Customs Jetty at 2:45 o'clock.

DISPLACES 14,750 TONS

The Mandarin, the largest vessel yet built by a Shanghai dockyard, has a total displacement of 14,750 tons. It has a length of 429 feet, a beam of 55 feet and a depth of 37 feet 11½ inches. Its engines can generate 3,000 horse-power, guaranteeing a speed of ten and half knots per hour.

In comparison with other large size vessels that have been built in local dockyards, the Mandarin is more than three times the tonnage of the steamer Kiang Wah, two times that of the British standard ship, "C" type, and nearly five times that of the Norwegian steamers built in the New Engineering and Shipbuilding Works.

The largest vessel built in Shanghai up to 1918 was the Kiang Wah of the Kiangnan Dock and Engineering Works, having a total displacement of 4,100 tons.

A big jump in size of vessels built here was made in 1919, when the Shanghai Dock and Engineering Co., Ltd., launched one of the three British standard ships "C" Class, with a total displacement of 7,200 tons each.

Since the armistice, the New Engineering and Shipbuilding Works, Ltd., has been building several vessels of 3,100 tons displacement for Norwegian shipowners.

BOLSHEVIK HEAD MEETS BRITONS

M. Krassin In Conference With Lloyd George And Others On Trade Subjects

(Reuter's Service)

London, May 31.—M. Krassin, head of the Bolshevik trade delegation, had his first interview today with Mr. Lloyd George, to discuss the opening up of Anglo-Russian commercial relations. Mr. Bonar Law, Lord Curzon, Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, and Sir Robert Horne, President of the Board of Trade, were present.

It is understood that the British Government will insist upon the release of British prisoners in Russia before assenting to a resumption of trade.

Today's meeting between M. Krassin and the British Ministers only dealt with general trade proposals and not with any question of recognition, the object being to discover what Russia needed and what she was able to export.

It was made clear that trade could not be conducted simultaneously with propaganda.

FRENCH DECLINE

London, May 31.—The French newspapers state that the French Government is leaving to Mr. Lloyd George the entire responsibility with regard to the negotiations in London with M. Krassin, the head of the Russian Trade Mission, on the ground that France cannot open conversations with Soviet representatives which would end in the recognition, even indirectly, of the Moscow Government.

PROTEST GOLD PAY

London, May 31.—The Ukrainian diplomatic mission has sent letters to Mr. Lloyd George and the Foreign Office, protesting against the reported intention of M. Krassin, the chief of the Russian Trade Mission, to pay gold for proposed purchases by the Soviet Government of Russia in West Europe on the ground that a share of the gold in the Russian State Bank belongs to the Ukraine and that the Ukraine is partially liable for the Rumanian gold reserve which the Bolsheviks captured at the Kremlin.

The mission asks that the protest be transmitted to the Supreme Economic Council.

SOVIET AND PERSIA

Harbin, June 2.—According to an intercepted Bolshevik wireless message, the Soviet is negotiating with Persia with the object of guaranteeing the safety of Soviet representatives in Persia, whom the message states, it is feared the Allies intend to evict.

JAPAN MILITARY PREVENTS TRUST

Times Expert Says World Cannot Believe Until Change Is Made

(Reuter's Service)

London, May 31.—Concluding his articles on the Far East in the Times today, Mr. J. O. P. Bland declares that it is impossible for the outside world to take Japanese liberalism as seriously as they would wish as long as the real direction of Japan's foreign policy rests, not with the ostensibly responsible Cabinet, but with the military General Staff or as long as the power of the Diet continues limited to mild obstruction.

Mr. Bland continues: "It will be time to believe that the military party's plans are seriously disapproved when the Kenseikai or the press publicly insists on the right of the Government to appoint a civilian head of the War Ministry, the crucial test of the strength of liberalism.

CHINA IS THE TEST

"Japan is now confronting the country in the matter of its future policy in China. Hitherto that policy has always reflected the aggressive plans and tendencies of the fighting clans, a fact which nearly everyone professes to deplore but which no public man ever dares to attack openly.

"It is significant that even the leading intellectuals and the aristocratic young radicals all fight shy of tackling this question in real earnest. This is to be attributed to the faulty system which is still the strongest moral and political force in Japan."

Government Says Present Fighting Is Purely Local

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, June 2.—Though the Southern troops have occupied Anjen, Kiyang, Leiyang and Hengsien without fighting, the Government prefers to regard the matter as local trouble, not affecting the peace negotiations.

General Chang Ching-yao's troops have not moved beyond Changsha and the reports of fighting are declared to be incorrect. General Wu Kuang-hsin, at the request of the Government is despatching two brigades to Changsha.

WORLD'S DESTINY NOW IN HANDS OF U.S. AND BRITAIN

Earl Of Reading Says Two Nations Must Co-operate For Sake Of Future

(Reuter's Service)

London, May 31.—Speaking at luncheon at the Aldwych Club today, the Earl of Reading, Lord Chief Justice and late Ambassador at Washington, dealing with the subject of Anglo-American relations, said that Americans and Englishmen felt that the co-operation that had existed in the war should be continued in peace and become more and more effective. He was unalterably convinced that between America and Great Britain lay the future world destiny of mankind.

IRISH PROPAGANDA

Alluding to the effect of the Irish question on American opinion, Lord Reading said that every British Ambassador to America had to take account of Irish propaganda in the United States. Americans recognised the difficulties of the situation. It would be a fortunate day in Anglo-American relations when the Irish propaganda question was removed from the United States. Great Britain and America were going to be rivals in trade and commerce in future, but friendly rivals.

With regard to war debts to America, Lord Reading said he was sure that Great Britain was not going to expect any remission, but intended to pay in full.

Americans Meet On Saturday To Plan For Fourth

Plans for a Fourth of July (Independence Day) celebration in Shanghai are to be made at a general meeting to be held Saturday, June 5, in the reading room of the American Consulate-General. All Americans interested in plans for the celebration are invited by Consul-General Edwin S. Cunningham to be present. The meeting is called for 12:15 o'clock.

JAPO-SIBERIAN PARLEY BEGINS

Far East Republic Wins Concessions In First Day's Deliberation

BY NATHANIEL PEFFER
(Staff Wire to The China Press)

Peking, June 2.—Word was received here today to the effect that Japan has opened peace negotiations with the new Siberian government at Verhneudinsk.

The associated Siberian representatives are reported to have made several drastic demands, among them being the immediate disarmament of all of Semenoff's troops and the prompt evacuation by Japan of the trans-Baikal district.

According to the report from Verhneudinsk, the Siberian delegation has accepted Japan's condition, to the effect that the Far East Republic will completely divorce itself from the Soviet government before calling upon Japan for formal recognition.

The Japanese condition referring to the establishment of a bona fide democratic government is also reported to have been agreed upon.

It is now considered likely that Japan's recognition of the new government is only a matter of a short time.

SEMENOFF THROUGH; OPPONENTS IN POWER
(Via Russia Agency)

Vladivostok, May 29.—Semenoff's adventure has failed once more; the only way left for him runs outwards. Since the events of April 4 and 5, the agents of Semenoff have been vainly engaged in spreading persistent rumors regarding the possibility of a coup d'etat.

Semenoff's followers who escaped through the Japanese headquarters have spread propaganda unrestrictedly. The absence of Russian armed forces—removed from the district according to the military agreement—and the poorly armed militia, have created conditions favoring Semenoff's adventure.

Being informed of a conspiracy, the Government has arrested many alleged accomplices and persuaded the Japanese command to return a thousand rifles and forty thousand cartridges.

NO ARMED FORCES

General Takayanaghi has assured the government that no armed offensive will be allowed by the Japanese. The conspirators have failed to gain the support of the people, even that of the wealthy classes; and agents of Semenoff, though well paid, have disappeared when the time to act came.

LONDON TIMES PAYS TRIBUTE TO DR. MORRISON

(Reuter's Service)

London, May 31.—The Times, in a leading article today, expresses its regret at the death of Dr. G. E. Morrison whom it describes as "a great servant of the Empire and of the Times."

The article says: "Into a life, comparatively short in years but rich in fulfilment of public duty, he crowded such a series of romantic adventures as has fallen to few, if any, of the British race since the Elizabethan Age.

"The guiding principle of his career was his faith in the mission of Great Britain and his determination to use his exceptional abilities in its interest. Happy the Empire and happy the journal which can command such devotion!"

In announcing the death of Dr. G. E. Morrison at Sidmouth, the Times says: "Even his last months were devoted to working as best he could from the sickroom in the interests of China."

Peking, June 3.—A Presidential mandate will be issued this evening, expressing regret at the death of Dr. G. E. Morrison.

GO TO CHINA COURTS FOR MONEY, RULE MADE FOR WU

Magistrates Here Refuse To Release Funds Held In Banks

NOT IN POLITICS

British Assessor Says He Will Not Be Partisan

Enjoining Dr. Wu Ting-fang, erstwhile Minister of Finance, from removing some $2,000,000 from Shanghai Banks and announcing that the Shanghai Courts are not to be used for the settlement of China's political disputes, British Assessor Blackburn and Magistrate Li yesterday handed down a decision in a case that has been agitating official circles in Canton, and Peking as well, for several weeks.

The outcome is that Dr. Wu, although he has not resigned his ministry, is not recognised as authority for the disposal of funds paid into the treasury for educational advancement and it is advised that he remove from the confines of the Foreign Settlement here and place himself in the jurisdiction of the Chinese courts where the matter may be heard in full.

In handing down the decision the Court said:

"This matter is before the court on an application by Counsel for defendant for an order that the action be dismissed and the injunction granted herein on April 17 be dissolved.

DISCUSS ARGUMENT

On April 28 we said in this court: "It appears to us (subject to argument) that the proper course for us to adopt, and that in fact the only thing in our power to do, is to preserve this trust fund and not allow it to be used for any purpose whatever until either the parties have come to some agreement as to its disposal, or we are otherwise satisfied beyond all manner of doubt, and without the introduction of questions of constitutional law, as to the person or persons to whom the fund should be paid, or in whose hands it should be allowed to remain."

"On May 20 we heard argument by Counsel on both sides. Mr. Fessenden and Mr. Harris on behalf of Dr. Wu Ting-fang maintained that the whole matter was a political one and so not within the jurisdiction of this Court and, also, that our injunction was bad on two grounds, firstly, because injunctions ought not to be granted in political cases and, secondly—because the injunction being ancillary to the main suit, it must be dissolved with our refusal to decide the issues on which the suit depended.

"Mr. Macleod on the other hand maintained that in its essence the case was not political at all, that it was composed of a number of issues of fact capable of proof by ordinary legal methods and that this court was not only competent but bound to take jurisdiction.

"Now our reply to these arguments is merely this:

"Though it may be possible by close analysis and the use of sophistry to show that there is nothing political about this case, it is useless to deny that as a whole it is political and nothing else. And therefore not because 'courts of equity should not interfere in political matters' but merely because we will have nothing to do with the disputes of any of the governments or political parties in China and we refuse to allow this court to be used for the settlement of any such disputes.

NO SANCTUARY HERE

"But it does not follow that we are, therefore, to allow any person on the plea of politics to claim sanctuary in the foreign settlement, bring here the property in dispute which he fears would be wrested from him if he remains on Chinese soil and there dispose of or enjoy it without let or hindrance. It would be grossly unfair to the aggrieved party who has used due diligence were we to refuse him the right of prosecuting his suit and at the some time allow the aggressor to get away unhindered with the property in dispute.

"We are quite prepared to admit that in laying an injunction upon Dr. Wu Ting-fang while at the same time refusing to hear evidence on any of the material issues of the case against him, we have not been guided by any legal principles or any rule of law; the only principle by which we have been guided is that of holding the scales as evenly as possible between the parties. It is for this reason that we feel that until such time as this suit is

RICE PRICE SOARS UP ANOTHER THREE POINTS YESTERDAY

Cereal Now Sells At $10.80 Per Picul; Laborers Panic Stricken

MAGISTRATE SHEN ACTS

Small Quantity Arrives At Shanghai But Does Not Help Situation

The price of rice soared up another three points yesterday and the highest grade of the cereal now sells at $10.80. Reports in the morning were that the merchants were quoting the price at $11, but no actual business was done beyond the $10.80 figure.

A small quantity of the staple arrived at Shanghai from the interior, but it did not relieve the situation at all. Magistrate Shen Pao-chang has ordered the dealers not to raise their price any more in view of the critical condition. The laboring classes are restless. More strikes are contemplated for higher wages.

URGES CONFISCATION

The Association of Civic Affairs of Nantao yesterday addressed a petition to the Civil Governor of Kiangsu, asking for the confiscation of the 14 carloads of rice seized by the authorities at the Fungkiang railway station. It suggested that the food should be handed over to the cheap rice exchanges, which will open at the Temple of the Dragon King and the Boatmen's Guild, Nantao Saturday, for distribution.

The message further stated that although the shortage of supply is due partly to the failure of the farmers to ship their stocks to Shanghai, the main cause is smuggling to Japan. The society asked that stringent measures be adopted to check the exportation and to punish the profiteers.

Magistrate Shen was host at a tiffin given yesterday to members of the gentry and the rice dealers. He suggested the confiscation of the seized stock at Fungkiang. The guests were unanimous in their agreement to the suggestion and representations will be made to the provincial authorities to confirm the decision.

MUST HAVE CONTROL IN OWN STATE, SAYS CHINA

Notifies Britain All Treaty Clauses Affecting Her Must Be Endorsed

DEMAND HEARING

Will Recognise No Pact Making Grants To Japan Unless Consulted

STARTLING UKASE

Amounts To "Declaration Of Independence" By The Government

BY NATHANIEL PEFFER
(Staff Wire to The China Press)

Peking, June 2.—The government of China today formally notified the official representative of Great Britain that emphatic objection will be made to any clause in the projected Anglo-Japanese alliance which attempts to establish China's status, unless it has first been submitted to this country.

This is understood to mean that China will not recognise any unauthorised guarantees of its integrity by one or the other of the contracting nations, nor any provision that Japan shall have special position in this country unless the home government shall have first given its consent to the insertion of the clause in the prospective pact.

AN IMPORTANT STAND

This action follows a precedent established shortly after the signing of the Ishii—Lansing agreement, and will, it is believed, materially affect the negotiations between Great Britain and Japan. It definitely states China's determination, henceforth, to be consulted by other powers in any matter affecting her welfare and national integrity.

The decision also gives the Chinese government an excuse, at any future date, to refuse recognition of the provisions of the new Anglo-Japanese treaty, on the basis of this notification, and marks China's debut into a new and stalwart relationship with foreign governments.

BURNING OIL MENACES SHIP AND DRYDOCK

Flaming oil on the water in the dry dock at the Kiangnan Engineering and Shipbuilding Company's plant last night threatened the destruction of the motor schooner Juno and the dry dock but quick work by the Municipal Fire Department and the Chinese firemen in the district checked the blaze. For a time it appeared likely that the schooner would be destroyed and the dock seriously damaged. One member of the crew of the vessel was burned.

The Juno had 150 tons of oil aboard and a large quantity of it flowed to the surface of the water from a vent that was accidentally opened. The oil caught fire and ignited the superstructure of the ship. It swept the engine and boat decks and consumed one of the life boats on the port side. Woodwork of the dock caught fire and the blaze threatened to become serious.

Chinese fire units were first called but as the flames gained headway a call was sent in for units of the Municipal Department.

U. S. May Loan Fifty Millions To Armenia

(Reuter's Service)

Washington, May 30.—The Senate has postponed action on the Armenian resolution in order to allow Senator Hitchcock to present an amendment empowering the President to appoint three Americans to serve with three Armenians on a commission to supervise economic development in Armenia and providing for a $50,000,000 loan to Armenia for the purchase of agricultural implements, railway materials and other supplies, but stipulating the United States shall not be responsible for the principal or the interest.

HSU TENDERS RESIGNATION WHEN TUAN WANTS WAR

Chief Executive To Retire If War Lord Marches Against South

BLAME IS FIXED

Admiral Sah Holds Hunan Tuchun Responsible For Great Loss

Unless the Anfu Club refrains from sending Marshall Tuan to Hunan to combat against the victorious forces of the South, President Hsu will tender his resignation. He will retire, he says because his last hope for bringing the North and the South together will have been shattered.

Official reports from a Peking commission recently sent to Hunan say that Chang Ching-yao, the Northern Hunan Tuchun, was responsible for the start of the clash between the opposing forces. He did so to offer his patron and master, Marshall Tuan, the excuse to mobilise and march down to his province and wipe out the Southern units with his three divisions of the Border Defense Army, the best trained and equipped in the country.

PLANNED IN ADVANCE

It was all planned out beforehand. Tuan has been impatient in Tuanho. Wires between Tuanho and Changsha were kept hot with "urgent" messages. In his circular telegraphic communique, however, Chang left out Tuanho altogether. Tuan had of course agreed to suppress General Tan Yen-kai and his followers with armed force. His army of lieutenants wants him to.

The President's threat is keeping Tuan wavering. If he carries out his contract with Chang, he at once splits with the Chihli faction, which has become a formidable foe to his Anfu crowd since the formation of the Tuchuns' League. Then he will not be able to move very far. Tsao Kun, with his eight crack divisions in Paotingfu and vicinity, is not likely to be disinterested in having three modern divisions pass his territory. Wu Pei-fu, Tsao's fighting aide, after leaving Chang in a "bad hole" is due to join his superior Sunday.

NO HELP FROM CHAO

Even if Tuan gets by Tsao and Wu, he will not get much sympathetic support from Chao Ti, the Honan Tuchun who successfully threw out Tuan's brother-in-law and protege, General Wu Kwan-hsin, a few months ago when the Anfu clique wanted to replace him with the "Little brother-in-law."

The reports of the commission are all unfavorable to the Hunan Tuchun. Chang was instructed, they said, to concentrate his forces in Changsha and to leave Kiyang, Leiyang and Anjeng undefended. He knew full well that the Southern forces would take them. He sacrificed thousands of lives to work out the Anfu intrigue—to upset the peace table and to give Tuan Chi-jui a job.

CHANG RESPONSIBLE

In view of these reports, Admiral Sah Cheng-ping, the Acting Premier, has addressed a telegram to Chang Ching-yao holding him responsible of the consequences of the clash, which has resulted in the loss of Hengyang, Paoching and the three cities which he offered as a bait to the South to enable Tuan to resume his militaristic career.

The delay of Tuan's march to Hunan is causing a great deal of anxiety among the Anfu militarists in Hunan province. Chang has applied for 600,000 rounds of ammunition to be shipped to him from the Hangyang Arsenal.

RUSH TO HUNAN

The Joint Bureau of the General Staff and the Ministry of War decided at a meeting Tuesday to order General Wu Kwan-hsin, Tuan's brother-in-law, to rush to Hunan immediately. Detailed instructions were also given to Wu as to the defense of the strategical points.

The Cabinet has also addressed a telegram to the Southern Military Government, protesting against the action of General Tan Yen-kai in capturing the five cities after signing the armistice himself.

The Southern forces, encouraged by their successes, are advancing rapidly. After capturing Hengyang, they are marching on Hengshan, less than 50 miles from Changsha, the seat of Tuchun Chang Ching-yao.

withdrawn or compromised or better still, until Dr. Wu Ting-fang, by leaving the shelter of this foreign settlement withdraws himself from the jurisdiction of this court, the present injunction must be continued.

"But in order to avoid any doubt as to our intentions and to prevent any question arising as to the use of foreign technical terms, we say quite clearly that we refuse to try any of the issues between the Southern government and Dr. Wu Ting-fang, and we withdraw our previous order of April 17 and make a new one in these terms.

THE DECISION

"It is hereby ordered that Dr. Wu Ting-fang shall not remove from any bank or banks holding the same any monies being surplus Customs revenue remitted by the government at Peking for the use of the Military government of the Republic of China."

Johnson A Good Third With Rest Of Candidates Far In Rear

Save for ballots which may come into the offices of THE CHINA PRESS from outlying districts during the next few days, the canvass of public opinion regarding a choice for President amongst American residents in the Far East, conducted by this newspaper, came to an end last night, with Herbert Hoover leading his closest rival, Gen. Wood, by a majority of 36 votes as first choice and by three votes as second choice.

Senator Hiram Johnson of California ran third in each event, being 14 votes behind Gen. Wood in the race for first choice and six votes behind the same candidate as second choice. The rest of the Presidential possibilities were "nowhere," in the opinion of the Americans in China.

The ballots which may yet come into the Editor's hands will be carefully canvassed and tabulated and an announcement of them made within the next few days, providing there are enough to make any worth-while difference in the "score."

The finish of the straw ballot shows the following results:

Darroch Road Creek Is To Be Culverted

In response to a letter from residents of Darroch Road the Creek at that place is to be culverted, according to an announcement made in today's issue of the Municipal Gazette. Mr. E. S. B. Rowe has addressed the following letter to the protestants:

"I am directed to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of May 13, addressed to the Health Officer, on the subject of an insanitary creek off Darroch Road, which you desire to be culverted, and to inform you that the Council accedes to your request."

His letter was in reply to the following communication sent to Dr. A. Stanley, Health Officer of the Municipal Coucil:

"We, the residents of Darroch Road, off North Szechuen Road Extension, beg leave to report to you the fact that the small creek at the end of this road, which runs between our houses, is always filled with dirty water and refuse. That being the case, we are in constant danger of contracting serious diseases, besides, the stench is most annoying.

"Now that a portion of this useless creek has been culverted, we understand, by the Chinese Authority, we shall appreciate if you will kindly bring this matter to the notice of the Council with a view to their doing the same with the other portion inside the Foreign Settlement.

Trusting our request will meet with your kind consideration and thanking you in anticipation."

BRITISH POLICY WITH COLONIES NOT YET FIXED

Dominions May Be Transferred To President Of Council, Report

DECISION SOON

Strong Feeling In Favor Of Special Bureau For Mandatories

(Reuter's Service)

London, May 31.—With regard to the statement of the Sunday Express, that "the Government intends to introduce far-reaching changes in the method of conducting affairs in connection with the Dominions, which will henceforth deal direct with the Privy Council instead of the Colonial Office, while the new mandatory territories will be removed from the present control of different conflicting authorities and placed under the Colonial office," Reuter learns that no definite decision has yet been reached with regard to a new arrangement for conducting business between the Dominions and the Imperial Government; but it seems possible that, as decisions must shortly be made with regard to the Government department that will have to deal with the British mandated territories, a decision may be taken with regard to the Dominions also.

SPECIAL DEPARTMENT

It has been proposed that the Colonial Office, which already deals with mandated ex-German territory, should deal with other British mandated territories. Authoritative circles generally feel that there should be a department dealing exclusively with the Near East, Egypt, Palestine, Mesopotamia and Arabian questions, not necessarily under a new minister nor involving the creation of a new office.

The suggestion that Dominions business should be transferred from the Colonial Office to the President of the Council is considerably favored by influential quarters.

Editor Is Here From Tokio To Make China Tour

Chief Of Herald Of Asia Spends Ten Days On Shanghai Visit

Mr. Motosada Zumoto, editor of The Herald of Asia, an ably conducted Tokio weekly, which is published in English, is leaving Shanghai today for a short tour through China before returning to Japan. He has spent about ten days here and is very much impressed with the commercial and industrial activity as well as the general air of prosperity, of the port.

Until very recently Mr. Zumoto had been in charge of the publicity work for his government in Siberia. He declared yesterday that he is firmly of the belief that the early future will produce much friendlier relations between Japan and China and also between Japan and Siberia.

He is confident that the Japanese troops will be withdrawn from Siberia in a short time. He regrets that the Peking Government has not agreed to have direct negotiations with Japan in the Shantung matter.

"Direct negotiation," he said, "would have given the Japanese Government a chance to show its friendship for China. If the matter is again placed before the League of Nations we may have to stand on the award made by the Peace Conference under the terms we accepted."

Semenoff Through; Opponents In Power

have escaped, and are now beyond the reach of the Government.

At yesterday's extraordinary meeting of the Municipal Council and the political organisations, full confidence was unanimously voted for the present Government.

READY FOR PEACE

Verhneudinsk, May 28.—Minister of Foreign Affairs Krasnoschekoff today said, with regard to the peace, that the Verhneudinsk Government is ready for it and that it depends upon Japan which officially declared its non-interference and its readiness to withdraw its troops. The Verhneudinsk Government, said M Krasnoschekoff, does not doub the insincerity of the Japanese.

"We declare before the world," continued the ministers, "that the only cause of disorder, internal dissension and bloodshed is the barrier laid at Chita, which is protected by two walls—by the Japanese troops west of Chita and those northeast of Sretensk.

"We demand a complete neutrality of the expeditionary forces and we agree to withdraw our army right away from the railway, on condition that all Semenoff's forces be also withdrawn. Our cause is before the world, let the Japanese command say its word.

SLOGAN HAS FAILED

"The slogan 'divide and conquer' has failed. In spite of the existence of the three fronts, at Khabarovsk, Sretensk and Chita the component parts of our young Republic are approaching close contact. The watchful eyes of Semenoff did not prevent the establishment of contact at the Chita and Sretensk fronts.

"The Amur Government has officially recognised the authority of the Verhneudinsk Government. An emissary has been appointed head of the Government at Blagoveschensk. A united money system, issuing new paper money of excellent design, is now in the process of preparation. Strict orders have been issued to effect a union of all peace parleys.

"The Far Eastern Republic, from Baikal Lake to the Pacific, is one undivided and independent state, left to itself to deal with the comming issues."

BRITISH LEAVE CRIMEA

Moscow, May 27.—Is it reported from Sebastopol that the despatch of the British troops from the Crimea is completed. There are, among these troops, naval marines, detachments of sailors, and Hindus with full equipment and ammunition.

All the reserve stores of tanks, guns and other war material, at one time placed at the disposal of Denikin's army, have also been shipped away. The British ordnance and armies were shipped on two English transports and the British citizens have left with the British troops.

The ships are now on their way to Constantinople.

INTER-PARTY TALK

Through the heavy sacrifices that accompanied the struggle in the Far East, and through the undescribable efforts made by the revolutionary democracy, a victory has been won finally by the coup d'etat of January 31—a victory that has completed the downfall of the remnants of the Kolchak reaction and has helped the establishment of the Government of the Primorskay District Zemstvo Board.

This victory has meant not only the downfall of internal reaction, but it also has dealt a heavy blow to the aggressive aspirations of the imperialistic inventors, who have been engaged in taking advantage of the existing situation to enslave the district, both politically and economically, with the help of the ruffian bands of the Atamans.

JAPAN STAYED IN

All the peaceful statements made by the Provisional Government, its concessions, compromises and peace overtures did not hold back imperialistic Japan from engaging in the bloody events of April 4 and 5. We cannot but think of the Far Eastern borderland as an integral part of a single Russia, and we strive to bring about a political and economic unification with Soviet Russia.

Taking into consideration the existing situation and the present state of affairs of transitory period, the Inter-Party Conference, speaking in the name of the revolutionary democracy, believes it necessary to express its opinion on the political and economic problems of the region, as follows:

POLITICAL CONSTRUCTION

1.—All Eastern Siberia comprehends the necessity of creating an All-Siberian District Union embracing all the scattered provinces of the Far East, with a view to the most favorable solution of the political problem of the Far East.

2.—This new District Union of Eastern Siberia must in no way destroy the ties uniting Siberia and Russia, and must be based on the principle of a military and economic alliance with Soviet Russia, with complete autonomy in its internal life.

3.—The following provinces must enter the Union: Maritime province, Kamchatka, Sakhalin, Amur and the Transbaikal. To this end the Provisional Government must immediately enter into negotiations with the public and political organisations of the aforementioned Provinces.

4.—The carrying out of the idea of creating an Eastern Siberian Union is possible only on condition that the political forces of these provinces approve of it and that the Soviet Government recognises it.

5.—A popular Legislative Assembly of Eastern Siberia, elected by the masses of democracy, must be the source of authority of the Union. Until the realisation of these problems has been carried into effect, the Provisional Government remains on its post, having taken measures for the immediate convocation of a representative body in the person of a special Council of representatives of the organised society, having clothed them with broad legislative initiative.

ECONOMIC POLICY

1.—To nationalise only those enterprises of the national industry which can be easily brought under social control under the present level of the economic development of the region.

2.—To strive for the monopolisation and co-operation of those enterprises of the industrial life of the region which serve for the direct needs of the population.

3.—To grant freedom of private initiative in the industrial life of the district, and to establish government control and regulation over all the enterprises of trade and industry on the principles of attracting representatives of the local self-governments.

4.—To settle the land question in the interests of the vast masses of peasants on the principle that land should belong to those who work on it.

5.—To protect the natural resources from being extravagantly exploited, and their utilisation for the economic interests of the district and Russia at large.

6.—To adhere to the financial policy of rigid economy.

7.—To strive for the development of a social legislature, providing for the protection of hired labor.

8.—To restore normal trade with foreign countries, under the control of the Government.

9.—In the realisation of this task it is necessary that the Government, in its economic policy, neither adhere to the system which may prove to be unreasonable, nor make inadmissible concessions to the anarchic tendencies of private capital.

Promising its broad support to the organs of the Provisional Government, and the proposed District Union, in the realisation of the aforesaid task, the Inter-Party Conference believes it necessary to declare to the country that it will take every measure possible to organise the Eastern democracy around its revolutionary centers, with a view to creating a single front of defense in an alliance with Soviet Russia against aggressive aspirations of the imperialistic militarists.

Japan Says China Misunderstood Her

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, June 2.—The Japanese Legation has replied to the Chinese protest with regard to the wording of the Japanese manifesto, issued in Vladivostok on March 31, in which Manchuria is placed in the same category as Korea.

The Legation points out that the Chinese are under a misapprehension as the language, employed in the Japanese manifesto, does not have the meaning which the Chinese attach to it.

Russians Sent To Prison On Charge Of Shoplifting

Two Russians, convicted of shoplifting, were sentenced yesterday by the Mixed Court. A man, registered as Z. Zakofsky, was sentenced to six months imprisonment and a woman, said to be his wife, was given a two months term. A woman accomplice who was tried before the Russian consular court was sentenced to three months imprisonment.

It was found that the trio stole goods valued at $195 from the Arts and Crafts Shop, 43 Bubbling Well Road; others worth $104 from the Arts Lace Company, 93 Bubbling Well Road; goods appraised at $53 from Ching Chow and Company, 534 Nanking Road and articles worth $78 from the Cathay Lace Company, 19 Nanking Road.

The case was first called before Italian Assessor Ros and Magistrate Tsang. It was remanded to the Russian Assessor Ivanoff who sat yesterday with Magistrate Li.

Post Named For Man Who Led 'Ever Victorious Army'

The formation of the General Frederick Ward Post of the American Legion, the National organisation of ex-army, navy and marine corps men who served with the forces of the United States during the war just past, has been announced from the National Headquarters in Indianapolis, Ind., and the charter authorising the post received in Shanghai.

The post has taken its name from General Frederick Ward, an American soldier who organised and directed the "Ever Victorious Army" during the famous Taiping Rebellion, afterwards turning the command over to "Chinese" Gordon. General Ward died in China and is buried at Sungkiang, 27 miles from Shanghai.

HAS 160 MEMBERS

The Shanghai post, which now has more than 160 men on its rolls, has been authorised to form other posts of the Legion in Peking, Tientsin, Hankow, Nanking, Hongkong, and Canton, and to bring them together under a central organisation to be known as the China Department of the American Legion. The Legion now has more than two million members in the United States and in the Far East is represented at present by the Shanghai and Manila posts. A third post in being formed in Tokio.

THE OFFICERS

The officers of the Shanghai post are: Major Arthur Bassett, post commander, Don D. Patterson, vice-commander, H. E. Marsden, post adjutant, Rodney W. French, post treasurer. All ex-service men in Shanghai or elsewhere in China, who are interested in the Legion and wish to become members are asked to send their names and addresses together with information regarding their service to the Post Adjutant.

NEW BRIDGE TO SPAN CREEK ON SZECHUEN ROAD

Plans Are Prepared And Call For Bids Will Be Issued Soon

Plans for a new bridge across Soochow Creek on Szechuen Road have been adopted according to the Municipal Gazette, and although the time has not yet been officially announced it is anticipated that a call for bids for its construction will be sent out at an early date.

The bridge will be a three span bridge, constructed of reinforced concrete and steel, and will be a deck span of cantilever type, the suspended span being of steel plate girder construction, and the cantilevers of reinforced concrete. The central span will be 120 feet, and the side spans approximately 56 feet each. As the suspended portion of the central span is 52 feet, the cantilever arms will be 34 feet each.

12-FOOT CLEARANCE

A clearance of 12 feet at high tide is provided in the middle of the center span, which is but very little reduced to within 40 feet on either side of the center. To obtain this clearance it has been necessary to use a grade of 1 in 25 for the roadway. The carriageway will be 36 feet wide, and the footways 10 feet each, giving a total width of 56 feet, compared with a total width of 30 feet in the old bridge. The bridge is designed to carry a 14-ton steam roller together with street cars and a uniform live load of 100 pounds per square foot. The general appearance of the bridge will be that of three elliptical arch spans.

AN ECONOMIC ONE

This type of bridge has been adopted for the reason that it is slightly more economical than a wholly steel structure; it will cost less in maintenance; and is infinitely superior in appearance. The work of construction, also, will be more rapid and will involve less interference to the waterway, during construction than other types considered.

In order that the center line of piers shall conform with the direction of the current the center line of the bridge has an angle of 'skew' of 14 degress.

The total cost of the bridge is estimated at Tls. 121,980 inclusive of work required to be done on piers, cofferdams, abutments and approaches.

Many Junes

Many Junes. By Archibald Marshall. New York: Dodd, Mead and Co. $2. (Gold).

Mr. Marshall's new novel is something of a departure from his customary type of fiction. He has been often compared to Trollope, and the comparison is a far more just and reasonable one than such literary near-identifications usually are; but this new book is in a different vein, one more serious and more sorrowful. For though both at the beginning and at the end of the book we have a glimpse of English country house life and country house amenities, it is only as a background, and not a very important background at that. Apart from the meeting with Margaret Paston, which might easily have occurred had he been merely a visitor, spending a few weeks in the village, Hugh's life would have been in all spiritual essentials much the same in Hampstead as it was at Wyse Hall, though poverty might have added friction to his relations with Mabilia.

The period of the story covers "many Junes" in the life of Hugh Lelachour, the first the beginning of that wonderful Summer when as a tall, thin, serious boy of 16 he first learned to know his sister Anne, a year older than himself, from whom he had been separated at the death of their mother, when they were both babies. Their father, Admiral Lelacheur, was a very disagreeable, very selfish, very vain and excessively stubborn person, who did not believe in sending girls to school, and had little use for his son after the boy failed to pass his medical examination for the navy—the only career worth sixpence, so the Admiral thought.

But if neither a fond nor a judicious father, he did at least leave the brother and sister alone, and the account of their two happy years at Foyle Manor forms an idyll full of delicacy and charm, with some lovely descriptions of the beautiful Dorsetshire country and a skillful handling of the almost ideal relationship existing between the two who for this brief time were all in all to each other. But presently Anne fell in love, and her marriage closed this, the happiest, almost the only happy period in Hugh Lelacheur's life. From that time on his history becomes the history of a man who, it would seem, had but to care for a thing to have it taken from him. The years at Trinity College, Cambridge, to which he had looked forward; the beautiful home of which he was so fond; the kindly uncle for whom he felt such a swift and spontaneous affection; the little niece who adored him and completely won his heart; the sister who was associated in his thoughts with all that was sweet and lovely; and last of all, the girl with whom he fell in love—too late. All these he lost; and though after "many Junes" a certain amount of consolation comes to him in the much-longed-for son, Mabilia speaks the truth when at the very last she says: "We've had the greater part of our lives, and we've made little of them—poor Hugh especially."

In spite of the fact that the action of the narrative all takes place during the years preceding the coming of the World War, one cannot avoid a conviction that the effect of the war is to be clearly perceived in the note of sorrow and of resignation which sounds all through the book. For, although at the end Hugh and Mabilia both seem to believe that "it is all made worth while by the child," one is conscious of the sadness tinging their belief, while Mabilia's half-expressed fear for Hugh, lest he lose little Richard "as he has lost everybody else he has loved," echoes in our ears like the prophecy of a knell soon to be rung. And yet, though Fate and the circumstances he could not control unquestionably seem to have delighted in thwarting and disappointing Hugh, his own lack of courage and of initiative, his unwillingness to face things, were also very much to blame for his failure to make much of his life. There are indeed, times when the reader is inclined to lose patience with him and his treatment of Mabilia robs him of a good deal of the sympathy he has held despite his aimless drifting. His weakness one might forgive, but not the way in which he deliberately chose to make the worst of the marriage into which he had entered at his own request. He had proposed to Mabilia; he did not tell her the truth, nor ask her to release him from his engagement, but intentionally assumed an attitude of cold antagonism she quite naturally could not understand, and for which he had but a very slight and very flimsy excuse—scarcely more excuse, in fact, than his father had had for his foolish quarrel with his brother.

Much of the intermediate part of Hugh's life was spent in London, a place he heartily disliked. But before the book ends the scene shifts to beautiful, stately Wyse Hall, the ancient home of the Lelacheurs, "with its carved and mullioned windows, high-pitched roofs and twisted chimney stacks," a place Mr. Marshall describes affectionately and well, from the moment when Hugh first enters its rooms "so full of gracious memories of the past" to the time when Mabilia and her mother talk together in the garden, where "the bees were droning among the flowers, and provided the only sound that broke the brooding peace of the Summer morning." Anne would certainly have loved Wyse Hall, and Anne was a dear girl, a girl of a sweet and joyous nature, from whom we are sorry to be obliged to part so soon. We are sorry, too, not to have seen more of the ingenious, devoted Dunster, that most accomplished of diplomats and most capable of butlers, and tiny, energetic old Lady Wilkinson is amusing, even if she did bully her daughter quite shamefully. Mabilia is rather colorless but snobbish; occasionally downright Mrs. Churton is a flesh-and-blood person. Like all of Mr. Marshall's books, this one is written in an agreeable, leisurely style, and is an interesting story of not unusual people.

My Neighbors

My Neighbors. By Caradoc Evans. New York: Harcourt, Brace and Howe.

The hardy reader who will persist beyond the almost impenetrable idiom of Caradoc Evans will be richly rewarded. Especially do we recommend the book to reformers, Utopista spinners of millennial dreams. It will bring them back to the earth they have forgotten, the earth very near to which the characters in Mr. Evan's book live. He shows us a people obsessed by fetichism—the religion of the common man in Wales, if we are to believe Mr. Evans, is no more than the most savage totemism. The stories bear the mark of undoubted authenticity, else we should doubt that religon could have shrunk anywhere to so despicable a superstition, so mean and fearsome a servility. In his introduction to "The Welsh People" Mr. Evans says of his "neighbors:"

"Although we know God, we are afraid of tomorrow; one will steal our seeds, a horse will perish, our wife will die and a servant woman will have to be hired to the time that we find another wife, the Englishman whom we defrauded in the market place will come and seek his rights. . . . It is no miracle that we are religious. Our God is just behind the preacher, and He is in the semblance of the preacher."

The authropomorphism of these people as presented in these stories is incredible. God is a "Big Man;" He peers through rents in Heaven at the pettinesses and higglings of the faithful. In one of the stories we are treated to the spectacle of a dying man praying the Lord to forgive him for going to the English chapel, as he does so merely to encourage trade, and asking that some one else be made to die in his place. This is a religion as competitive as pushcart peddling; huckstering in the face of Divinity. Another character in another story begs in his prayers that his thefts from his employers may be concealed until he has enough to retire and buy a farm. Throughout we are made to see that these people live in a superstitious fear that is no whit removed from the nature-haunted beliefs of the early savages.

What De Maupassant does for the French peasant, the small clerk, the bureaucrat, Mr. Caradoc Evans does for the Welsh. There is nothing glittering in Mr. Evans's technique; here he is comparable to the American, Mr. Sherwood Anderson, who unfolds his stories simply and artlessly. The stories are of two kinds—naturalistic and fantastic. The latter are grimly humorous extravaganzas dramatising the saints and angels of the Hierarchy, the "Big Man" Himself. The irony is mordant in these sketches. Throughout the volume there is scarcely a humanised figure; perhaps the nearest is the old lady in "A Widow Woman." For decades she slaves for her son. When her son dies she walks eighteen miles to her daugher-in-law's house to see that he is properly buried. Then she returns and begins again her slavery in order to provide for her grandchild. But even here we feel that the old woman is a clod animated by an obsession, a moron with a fixed idea.

The gentlemen who wish to build a "new world" overnight should read Caradoc Evans. There are such people as his everywhere. It may perhaps remind these mushroom reformers that even a new world will have to be built with people. And of such as these is certainly not the Kingdom of Heaven.

APPETITE THE TEST
If You Cannot Eat, Digestion Is Faulty

There is no surer sign of a disordered stomach than a poor appetite. If you are digesting your food properly you are bound to be hungry when meal-time comes round. The first sign that new, healthy blood is being made by Dr. Williams' pink pills is that you enjoy a bigger meal. That rich, red blood makes you eat. What is more, it enables you to derive benefit from your food.

The thin, dyspeptic man who turns away from his breakfast is in the same miserable state as the anæmic girl. Anæmia, in fact, affects men and youths just as often as girls, only it is not recognised so soon. Imperfect digestion and lack of appetite are common signs of this anæmia, and a tonic that is a specific for thin blood improves the digestion, with the result that the improved digestion hastens the correction of the anæmic condition.

Dr. Williams' pink pills are THE tonic for the blood and nerves. They begin at once to strengthen the digestion and steadily build up the system weakened by worry or overwork. The rich, red blood they make soon shows in cheeks and lips, the step is quickened, the eyes brighten, and the good effect is felt throughout the body.

The great usefulness of this tonic treatment for indigestion and anæmia has been proved in many thousands of cases the world over during the past thirty years. What Dr. Williams' pink pills for the pale people have done for others they will do for you. Begin them now. Obtainable from druggists everywhere, or, post free, $1.50 the bottle, $8.00 for six, from Dr. Williams Medicine Co., 96 Szechuen Road, Shanghai.

Follow the suggestions in the free diet book "What to Eat." A copy will be sent you if forward a postcard request to above address.

Bodily Vigor Is Hope Of Weak Nations, Declares Professor From Columbia

Athletics, Clean Morals And Education Will Promote Social Progress, Dr. John Dewey Tells Large Crowd At Chinese Y.M.C.A.

Promotion of athletics with consequent bodily vigor, self-confidence, optimism and enthusiasm is seen by Dr. John Dewey, Columbia University exchange professor attached to Peking University, as the surest method of promoting "Social Progress" in China or any other nation suffering from lethargy. He outlined his views last night at the Chinese Y.M.C.A. when he addressed an audience that filled to overflowing Martyrs Memorial Hall.

Mr. W. W. Lockwood, general secretary of the Chinese Y.M.C.A. in Shanghai, served as chairman and Dr. Dewey's address was interpreted to the audience by Dr. Lin King-hsu, of the Nanking Higher Normal School.

Dr. Dewey's theme was that one may judge the progress of a community by the same standards as those applicable to an individual, namely:

FOUR QUESTIONS

1.—How is it physically?

2.—How is it economically?

3.—Is it making more and better friends?

4.—Are moral standards progressing?

In amplifying this view the speaker said that as to the physical test the matter of illness and the death rate should be gone into. He pointed out that every sick person is a liability to and drag on the community. Not only is society deprived of the efforts of the person but must use time and money in caring for him.

"Population of a community is in many ways like a machine," he said. "It is impossible to get out of it more energy than there is in it."

Playgrounds, recreation fields and promotion of clean sports and athletics were urged by Dr. Dewey as means of building up the physical fiber of the nation and overcoming the apathy and indolence that result from a debilitated condition. Not only does physical well being aid in eliminating the lower forms of vice, he pointed out, but, further, it results in social co-operation—teamwork—which is all-essential to social progress.

RICHES ARE NOT ALL

Dealing with the question of economics the speaker pointed out that merely growing rich does not augur that a person is advancing. The all-important questions are "How is he growing rich; by what means?" "To what use is the money being put?" It is the same with a nation. There may be a great industrial activity which is of benefit to only a few and is a source of hardship to the many. A rise in industrial circles of the standard of living is the great economic problem of the day, the doctor believes.

In order to illustrate the third proposition, that of friendships, the speaker made a strong plea for close co-operation. He told the old story of the man who broke a bundle of faggots, one by one, then bound together another bundle with twine and demonstrated that they could not be broken.

DEVELOP CHARACTER

Development of character, of self-control and self-command were the principal points brought out in connection with the fourth item on the doctor's list. He told how an individual is expected, with added years, to develop a higher moral standard and declared that it is the same with nations. He warned against accepting as democratic the mere word. Actual democracy does not consist of language, he pointed out. Nations that must be governed from without are like a small child in care of its governess. Submission to autocracy is always a sign of weakness that breaks under a prolonged strain, as was the case with Germany.

Explaining that he had not made a separate point of education, Dr. Dewey said that it was so closely wrapped up in all the other points as to need no separate classification. Said he:

"Education is really the central force in every form of social progress."

ENTENTE TO LIVE, DECLARES CAMBON

Clash Between Premiers Unfortunate, But Not Fatal To Relations

DEMANDS UPON GERMANY

Conditions That Must Be Met Before She May Sit In Conference

BY WALTER DURANTY

Paris, April 24.—"France is not absolutely opposed to the admission of a German delegation to the Peace Conference. Our acceptance only depends upon the fulfillment by Germany of certain preliminary conditions, conditions upon which we are determined to insist," said Jules Cambon, President of the Ambassadors' Council, in a statement made to The New York Times today.

Exactly what these conditions are M. Cambon declined to say yet, but I understand that they consist, first, of a genuine execution by Germany of the disarmament clauses of the treaty. This would involve:

A—Handing over the excess of heavy artillery which Germany still retains.

B—Settlement of the aviation difficulty. The Allied Aviation Control Commission has just filed a report on the subject stating that the Germans put so many obstacles in its way and were so secretive as practically to nullify its efforts.

C—Dissolution of the civic guards and of similar formations of really military character existing outside of the regular army.

D—Reduction of the Reichswehr, if not to the prescribed 100,000, at least to 200,000, which it at present considerably exceeds.

E—Disbanding of the Baltic forces and the clearing up of the unsatisfactory situation in Eastern Germany where large numbers of troops' weapons are concealed on the estates of big landlords.

The second condition is a definite guarantee that the full amount of coal due from the Ruhr be forthcoming. This might involve the withdrawal of the Reichswehr and a temporary occupation by allied or French troops.

"If Germany will accept our condition," continued M. Cambon, "we have no objection to admitting her to the sittings of the Peace Conference. The whole French attitude can be summed up in one phrase—our only desire is to see the treaty which England made as well as us carried out. The entente cordiale is being submitted to a fresh trial. The divergence of opinion between the French and British Premiers has reached a crisis. Though it is most unfortunate that there should be such breaches in the entente at frequent intervals, I venture to say that they will not destroy the good relations between the French and the English peoples. Even if the viewpoints of the two Governments differ the public opinion of both countries continues to be united. Perhaps, too, Lloyd George does not represent the whole of British public opinion. It is natural that differences should occur among the Allies—they are in the nature of family quarrels—but it is most unfortunate to make such a noise about them. In spite of that we shall do our best to maintain the union with Great Britain. The entente cordiale will survive because of the patience of the French diplomats."

Chin To Be Given Ten More Days Of Absence Leave

BY NATHANIEL PEFFER
(Our Peking Correspondent)

Peking, June 2.—Premier Chin Yun-peng's second leave of absence expires on Thursday and he offers to resign again. President Hsu Shih-chang will grant him ten more days leave, but will not consent to his retirement in view of the critical situation.

During these next ten days, Admiral Sah Cheng-ping will be asked to continue to act as Premier.

Athens, June 1.—The Greeks, on May 28, occupied Karagatch, a suburb of Adrianople, completing the occupation of Western Thrace in three days. No serious incident occurred.

Exchange Market

Messrs. Maitland, Fearon and Brand's report:

Exchange.—The London price of silver since our last circular shows a drop of 1⅜d. and 2d. for "spot" and "Forward" respectively. The latest quotations being 57⅝d. ready and forward. This brings the London price to about the equivalent of G.$1 per oz. pure in New York. The cross-rate between New York and London has risen 11 points to 3.93 during the week on the news of further shipments of Gold from London to America, which it is reported will aggregate G. $200,000,000.

Our rate for T/T on London followed the drop in silver and is quoted 5s. 8d. a drop of 4d. during the week. With the exception of one or two important lines exports generally remain very dull. The gold dealers have endeavored to support the market with resales of T/T on London but appear to have only been able to make a temporary steadiness which exists at the close.

Stocks of Sycee and Bar Silver:

Sycee and Bar Silver Tls. 38,954,000 a decline of Tls. 1,676,000.

Chinese and Mexican Dollars $22,710,000 a decline of 33,440,000.

Children Cry for Fletcher's

CASTORIA

Fletcher's Castoria is particularly a preparation for Infants and Children made agreeable to the taste, acceptable to the stomach and pleasant in its action. It has been in use for over thirty years and has always been one of the most highly esteemed of all cathartic preparations. It has one great advantage over other preparations of its kind in that while it opens the organs readily and completely, it does not have a tendency to produce subsequent constipation so much to be dreaded.

It was only after years of research in the fields of herbs and roots for a combination of purely vegetable matter that would have all the virtues of Castor Oil, without its disagreeable, nauseating properties, especially when used for infants or children, that the formula used in Fletcher's Castoria was found, and which for over 30 years has proven its worth. Try it.

Save the Babies.

Infantry mortality is something frightful. We can hardly realise that of all the children born in civilised countries, twenty-two per cent., or nearly one quarter die before they reach one year, thirty seven per cent., or more than one-third, before they are five, and one half before they are fifteen! We do not hesitate to say that a timely use of Castoria would save many of these precious lives. Neither do we hesitate to say that many of these infantile deaths are occasioned by the use of narcotic preparations. Drops, tinctures and soothing syrups sold for children's complaints contain more or less opium or morphine. They are, in considerable quantities, deadly poisons. In any quantity, they stupefy, retard circulation and lead to congestion, sickness, death. To avoid any possibility of giving your child opiates, or narcotics of any kind, keep Fletcher's Castoria in the house, and Save the Babies.

RACE HEAD IN TOILS

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Hankow, June 1.—The new Secretary of the Hankow Race Club has been arrested on a charge of forgery, misappropriation and betrayal of trust of a public institution. He was committed for trial and the case will come up on Saturday.

MUNICIPAL NOTIFICATION

No. 2715.

SHANGHAI MUNICIPAL COUNCIL 6 PER CENT. STERLING LOAN, 1920.

Amount £750,000

Price of Issue £100 per cent.

UNDER the authority of Resolution VII passed at the Annual Meeting of Ratepayers on April 7, 1920, the Council hereby invites applications for Bearer Debentures (with coupons attached) in the 6 percent. Sterling Loan of 1920, which is issued on the following terms:—

(1) Debentures to Bearer, with Sterling interest coupons attached, will be issued at £100 percent in denominations of £1,000, £500, £100 and £50.

(2) The Debentures of this issue will bear interest at the rate of 6 percent per annum, payable on June 30 and December 31 in each year by sterling demand draft on London at par, or in silver (local currency) at the Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Corporation's Shanghai current demand buying rate on London on date of presentation of the relative coupon. The first payment of interest will be made on December 31, 1920.

(3) Applications, accompanied by payment in full, will be received by the Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Corporation, No. 12 The Bund, on and after May 1, up to and including June 30, 1920, the Council reserving to itself the right of closing the subscription lists on any day previous to June 30, 1920, by Notification in the Municipal Gazette and Public Press of Shanghai.

(4) Payment on application will be accepted in Silver (local currency) at the Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Corporation's current selling T.T. rate on London and will bear interest from date of payment, or in Sterling by T.T. or Demand Draft on London. Interest on payments made in Sterling will only accrue from the date on which the relative remittances are received by the Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Corporation, London.

The cost of all telegrams involved through payment by Sterling T.T. shall be paid by the applicant.

Payment will be acknowledged by Banker's Receipt pending issue of the Debentures.

In the event of any applicant not being allotted the full amount applied for, the amount over-applied for will be repaid in full, plus interest at the rate of 6 percent per annum from the date payment was received in Shanghai or London to the due date of repayment in Shanghai, as notified to the applicant by special notice from the Council.

(5) The Loan will be redeemed at par on June 30, 1950, but may be redeemed by the Council in whole or in part on June 30, 1930, and/or on any subsequent date or dates on which the half-yearly interest is payable, subject to the Council giving six calendar months' notice in the Municipal Gazette and Public Press of Shanghai. In the event of any partial redemption of the loan the numbers of the Debentures to be redeemed will be decided by drawing. The numbers of such drawn Debentures will be notified in the Municipal Gazette and Public Press of Shanghai not less than three months prior to the date of repayment.

Application forms can be obtained on and after May 1, from the Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Corporation, No. 12 The Bund, or from the Treasurer and Comptroller, Finance Department, 24B Kiangse Road, to whom all enquiries should be addressed.

How to Preserve the Teeth

In order to keep the teeth in a good condition scientific precaution must be taken. Through negligence, decay and numerous other affections such as tooth-ache, dental periostitis esteo-periostitis, necrosis of the jaw, etc., may arise. During the process of ingestion, there are settled on the teeth, some deposits of mineral and organic matters, called tartar, which possesses a morbid power of pressing the gum. As an inevitable result of the presence of this tartar, the teeth will become elongated and movable and will, by degrees, absorb away the enamel, leading ultimately to the decay and degeneration of the teeth. The tartar is so hard and resistant to the process of brushing that it cannot be scraped off except with dental instruments specially devised for that purpose.

Dr. KINGMAN offers to the public his service for preserving their teeth at an annual subscription Fee of $10.00 per head to be paid in advance.

The work to be done by Dr. KINGMAN to the subscribers consists in:—

(1) Cleaning of the teeth quarterly
(2) Filing with gold platinum alloy only, when the teeth present holes.
(3) Inspecting the teeth at any time at the desire of the subscribers.

Peking Developes A National Policy!

WHAT has happened in Peking? We ask this question for the very simple reason that various outlines of a national policy are beginning to appear. Several weeks ago, after months of costly procrastination which produced among other evils another national students' strike, Peking decided that it would not enter upon direct negotiations with Japan in the Shantung matter, but would trust its fortunes to the League of Nations. This decision became all the more notable when contrasted with the widespread belief that Japan had, by military pressure supplemented by numerous loans, secured a firm and unshakeable grip on the Peking Government.

And now, while the new Anglo-Japanese Alliance is in process of negotiation, this same Peking Government has suddenly awakened to the fact that China has a deep and abiding interest in the terms of that Alliance. So Great Britain and Japan are notified that China will not agree to any stipulations in the new alliance that affect her unless she shall have been previously consulted and her consent obtained.

In the words of our Peking correspondent, "China has formally notified the representative of Great Britain that emphatic objection will be made to any clause in the projected Anglo-Japanese Alliance which attempts to establish China's status, unless it has first been submitted to this country."

This is interpreted to mean that if China's integrity is to be guaranteed by any nation or group of nations, China, as the party at first interest wants not only to know about it, but demands to be consulted about it. And if Japan or any other nation is to be given a special position or sphere of influence, such agreement will not be recognised unless China shall first have given its consent.

Our correspondent expects that this action by Peking will materially affect the Anglo-Japanese negotiations, and that "it marks China's debut into a new and stalwart relationship with foreign governments."

We hope he is right. While the interests of Great Britain, Japan, the United States, Canada, Australia and the rest of the world are being taken into consideration in the formation of this strange alliance, surely it is no more than right that the interests of the nation having the most at stake should be considered. And it is as surely right and logical that that nation should be consulted and its assent obtained before any clauses that affect its future are agreed upon.

ISIS THEATER PLEASE NOTE

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS

Dear Sir: May I, through your valuable columns, bring to the attention of the management of the Isis theatre that the first two episodes of "The Black Secret" featuring Pearl White be continued for another three nights.

Monday and Tuesday nights, I was told, the capacity of the house was so taxed that there was not even standing room. I went there for two nights, but being a little late, I could not get a ticket. People lined up in rows in front of the ticket counter and the sale was closed before the late comers had a chance. I know there are many enthusiastic theater goers like myself who would like to see the famous actress who, as has been reported, will not appear in serials any more. It will certainly be profitable for the management to repeat the picture so that every "movie lover" may share in the enjoyment. Yours truly.

MOVIE LOVER.

America And The British Empire :-: By Walford D. Green

(Nineteenth Century And After, London)

When Matthew Arnold was in New York, courageously lecturing on Numbers and the Remnant in that land of the millions and the millionaire, he wrote one of his letters from what he described as a delightful, pokey, dark, exclusive little old club of the Dutch families.

"It is the only place," he said pathetically "where I have found peace."

Now one does not go to the United States to find peace, but rather to examine "progress" at work, to compare a young and puissant nation with the races of Europe which can be described as mature or exhausted as fancy may prefer. Times have changed since James Russell Lowell uttered his famous growl against "a certain condescension in foreigners," and today the European in New York may feel like a citizen of Old Rome visiting the new city of Constantine to which power, wealth, grandeur and prestige seemed to have been transferred by fate. But it is to a citizen of the British Empire that the most serious questions as to the future must occur, when he realises all the portents of this new power, when he reflects on the relations of the past and on the problems of the future. In every consideration of practical life, whether of politics or commerce or social reconstruction, or in the difficult choice between nationalism and internationalism, between co-operation and competition, the big preliminary question is for us, Can the Empire and the States understand one another and work together? The first part of this question raises issues as to human character and temperament, as to what a modernist would probably call "herd psychology," and the second leads into the region of conflicting interests and rival destinies.

Certainly we do not understand one another at the present time. An unforeseen result of the War has been the mutual dislike which has arisen between the Allies, thought anyone who has read the memoirs of the Waterloo period knows that the same antagonism arose within the ranks of the Coalition that defeated Napoleon. This is not a phenomenon of Anglo-American relations only: all the nations seem to be infected by the same feeling of alienation from one another. When the four chief Powers sent military missions to Berlin, these missions held hardly any communication with one another. The French attache, M. Got, writes: "Nous habitons le meme hôtel que les Américans, nous sommes voisins —nous ne nous saluons pas. Pareil état de choses règne entre les Anglais et les Italiens qui cohabitent à l'hotel Esplanade." If picked men of the nations behave like this we cannot be surprised that the multitudes abandon themselves to the frankest depreciation of their recent comrades, and it is consoling to find that other peoples are as critical as our own.

We all know that the average Englishman, far more than the Scot or Welshman or Irishman, finds it amazingly difficult to feel anything but contempt for a foreigner, but the practice of abuse is just now the one completely international thing, and we may assume that the interchange of amenities between Americans and British is only one symptom of a world-disease and that it will soon die away. We shall all be tired before very long of debating who won the War and who spoiled the peace, and shall all realise, as the historical sense prevails over the promptings of vanity, the effort and sacrifice which each nation made. American and British papers of the lower kind have printed vile and despicable things which every reasonable man must regret, but they are not of serious importance. They may be jotted down in the herd psychologist's note-book and put on the side.

These times are not normal, and the vital question is whether an atmosphere of friendliness and understanding can be created in normal times. If we try to analyse the influences which cause one people to dislike another, apart from direct oppression, of which fortunately there can be no question in this instance, we shall find that jealousy and historic memories and irksome indebtedness are the most potent in the modern world. All these may operate to keep the American and British peoples asunder. We are jealous of each other at the present time; however much we may disclaim it and however foolish the sentiment may be. It might be thought that, as American fortune is so much higher than ours for the moment, all the jealousy is on our side, but that is not so. There are many who say that the War has dethroned the Empire as the chief world Power, and has set up America as the supreme and unchallenged nation which will be the final arbiter in all crises. That was the German hope, many times expressed during the War, although it alternated with the fear that the States and the Empire would unite forces and policies and impose Anglo-American culture on an enslaved world. We may be sure that if the old Germany revives and sets herself to a policy of revenge, she will use all the familiar diplomatic arts to stimulate this dangerous jealousy. The American who desires world supremacy eyes the British Empire askance because he knows that so long as that Empire exists no other Power can control the world. The British Imperialist who has the same desire is alarmed when he sees the figures of American wealth and reads of the biggest fleet and the biggest mercantile marine which some Americans desire to build. If there is to be a competition for world supremacy there is justification enough for envy and jealousy, and only a Titanic conflict could decide the issue. But happily there is no kind of need for a world Power that will be acknowledged as supreme, and no kind of need for classifying the nations as if they were competitors in a Tripos. If only we could get that very rudimentary truth into our heads we should have taken the first step towards expelling the evil passion.

But while it is clear that the idea of one world Power is a folly it is not so easy to perceive that Great Powers are needed by the world, and particularly that a very strong and active America, and a united Empire, are needed if we are to progress towards a sane and human internationalism. Equality in human relations is a beautiful ideal, but organisms in which all the parts are equal are likely to lack directing force. An exact equipoise between the brain and stomach would be more likely to produce a Caliban than a Haldane. Nations are no more equals than men, and in order that a nation may render its full service to mankind it is sometimes necessary that it shall exercise power over a wide area. The United States possess today an unparalleled control over the commodities of the world, an unequalled wealth and material prosperity; their population has elements of every European race which are mixed together and moulded so that the modern American is in his own person an international man. This process is called 'Americanisation,' and there is no doubt that the mixed elements do produce a marked and individual type. Some prejudices are lost, but the finished product is a man of like passions with ourselves. It is always hazardous to generalise about national characteristics, and the range of variety in American character is, like most American things, very big. But observation on the spot, during the time of elation and expansiveness which followed the War, gave one the opportunity for noting certain general qualities which are not so readily seen on this side of the Atlantic. The American in Europe is never quite his free natural self.

Energy, the rush for quick results, the belief that problems are made to be solved, the proved capacity to organise men and machinery on the largest scale, these are the qualities that will make the American so vital a factor in the future world, and they are qualities that can only be fully developed if the States remain a rich and powerful nation. Quickness and vigor and faith are invaluable to a world in transition. There are corresponding defects of course. If results come slowly and are incomplete a scheme will be abandoned, vigor often develops into a ruthless egoism, and faith becomes credulity. The American is the most easily disillusioned man in the world, but he is the swiftest in recovering illusion. Where else will you find so many new religions, and so many fantasies in science? He is the great experimentalist, in the oddest by-ways of psychological observation, and in attempts to enforce social righteousness. Side by side with 'graft' in politics and law and commerce stands the great self-denying ordinance of prohibition —an ordinance which only American idealism could have imposed, and only an equally American ingenuity will evade. That amazing law, whatever may be its future history, will always be a startling example of American trenchancy. The same habit of ignoring weighty considerations of individual right and freedom makes the American Executive act with a vigor and harshness in suppressing strikes and disorder that would never be tolerated in these islands. There is a prevalent belief that the American cares for nothing but dollars, and it is true that the dollar is too often taken as the measure of men and even of such purely spiritual goods as churches and colleges and libraries. A church will be described as a million-dollar edifice. Let us be thankful we do not know how much it cost to build Westminster Abbey. But the American squanders his dollars so freely that it is inconceivable that he really worships wealth. He is the least miserly of men and, if the world ever reaches the ideal state when all wealth is pooled he will show mankind how money can be spent in the grand manner on communal objects. Even as it is, Mr. Carnegie and Mr. Rockefeller have almost redeemed the good name of the Trusts. Next to greed the most common charge in the indictment of the whole American people is that of boastfulness. He would be a bold advocate who would deny that there is evidence to support this accusation. There was evidence in the days before the War, and it has accumulated in weight since the Armistice followed so quickly the arrival of the American vanguard in the battle-line. But they are not the first people to fall into the fallacy of post hoc ergo propter hoc. As a result of much observation I venture the paradox, which most readers will receive with derision, that American boastfulness often conceals a very modest estimate of personal and even of national worth. Two reasons have led me to this unpopular conclusion. Meet an outpouring of American glorification with a sentence of outspoken praise of America and in most cases the American will melt into a childish modesty. Again, the deference of academic circles in America for European opinion and judgment is almost amusing to anyone who is familiar with what European scholars say of one another. The Englishman abuses all things English until some foreigner attacks them: the American lauds all things American until some foreigner praises them.

It is in Washington rather than in the roaring cities of triumphant industrialism that one realises how valuable for mankind the United States of the future may become. Here a new capital is being slowly built in the midst of hills and woods, and homage is paid to the beauty of lawns and trees. Here are noble stretches of water and great buildings and the cherishing of historic memories, a quietness and simplicity that are distinguished. The Englishman wanders from statue to statue and reads the names of many who fought for the Americans in the war against England. But he will never find England named as the country which acknowledged defeat. That is a fine instance of restraint, and Washington collects and shows very modestly the evidences of national greatness. She commemorates both sides in the Civil War, which was the first proof that materialism is never the supreme consideration to a people destined to such influence as America must ultimately wield. The world needs the freshness and energy and wealth and power of America as much as it needs, for example, an active and secure France to spread art and wit and civilisation, and once we realise that we shall abandon jealousy of the States as irrational as well as ignoble.

But does the world equally need the British Empire, and is it possible to convince the American people that the Empire also serves mankind, and can only perform its service if it retains power and wealth? This is a more complex question because the second estranging force between nations, historic memories, operates as well as the insidious force of jealousy. The old purely American memory of the war of Independence has almost ceased to act as an irritant against Great Britain. American children are no longer taught to regard the England of the eighteenth century as a tyrant Power, and that old quarrel can be discussed without passion. But Irish memories remain, and Irish influence in the States is very strong. On that there is very little to be said except that Great Britain must act justly and leave the verdict to the world. Mr. de Valera has been made a freeman of New York, and five millions have been subscribed to the loan of the Irish republic, but after all Gladstone did say that Jefferson Davis had made a nation, which was quite as offensive to the Americans of the North as anything that Mr. Hearst has said about Ireland is offensive to us. It is a mistake to imagine that the typical Irish-American politician would ever be converted into a friend of the British Empire, even if Ireland should be set up as an independent Republic.

We have to reckon in the future with the further complication of a large German vote in the States, which may be used persistently to promote enmity against Great Britain. It is by no means certain that this will be the case, the German is far more completely Americanised than the Irishman, after a generation or two in his adopted country. He has not hitherto been organised as the Irish always have been, with a view to some non-American object, extraneous of States politics. He learnt very quickly that the American people as a whole were determined to win the War, he saw the immense contribution that America made, and thousands of American Germans themselves fought against Germany. Therefore the war memory cannot be directed chiefly against us, as it would have been if the States had remained neutral. The attitude of Germans in America will be dependent on the general course of international affairs. If the world can be rescued from political conditions of the old kind in which Germany, as she recovered strength, would think of nothing but revenge by force, we need not fear that German influence in the States will be used to prevent Anglo-American understanding; but if the old conditions survive, if the League of Nations is abandoned or proves a failure, we may be certain that Germans all over the world, and particularly in the States, will preach the doctrine that mankind cannot be free until the British Empire is overthrown, and that only America can accomplish the downfall of the tyrant.

Supposing for the moment that there has been a change of heart among all nations, that there is a new conscience powerfully at work, that we are actually living in an enlightened and unselfish world, how does the British Empire stand the scrutiny of a regenerated mankind? We do not need to go abroad to learn what the accuser's voice would say, as we have always had among us critics of the Empire quite as unsparing as any our rivals could produce. Let us take one of the most reasonable among our contemporaries, Mr. Lowes Dickinson, who is always clear and courageous, and is a distinguished advocate of the new political ideas. This is his version of the building of the Empire:

"England fought in succession against Holland, France, but with a view to annexing their territory in Europe, but with a view to supplanting them overseas. Influenced primarily by economic motives, she brought under the sovereignty North America, India, Australia, New Zealand, a great part of Africa, and a number of strategic points to secure her domination of all the seas. She thus built up an Empire to which none of those of the past can be compared in extent, in population, and in economic resources. On one side a free union of practically independent communities, on the other it is an Empire in the strictest sense. For while some 60 millions of the population govern themselves, some 350 millions are held in subjection, frankly by the sword. To maintain and to extend this Empire is the one real pre-occupation of British policy. And it can be neither maintained nor extended without war."

Further, in criticising the terms of peace, Mr. Dickinson says that England takes the greater part of the German colonial empire, Mesopotamia, a protectorate (as is anticipated) over Palestine and Arabia, and something very like a protectorate over Persia. Victory leaves her supreme at sea as she has never been before.

"Her power overshadows the whole globe. And this as a result of a war which professed to be fought for the principle that the attempt of a single State to dominate the world is a crime to be met and punished by all the resources of civilisation!"

It will be admitted that the indictment is strongly pressed. Mr. Dickinson writes almost with gusto about the crimes of his country.

The substance of his accusation is that the Empire holds 350 millions in subjection by the sword, that the seas are 'dominated,' and that British power overshadows the globe. He does not raise any objection to the Dominions. It is perfectly true that the tropical Dependencies are, in the last resort, held by the sword, in the sense that if Great Britain in India for example had no army India would be ruled by some other State or States which had. But to write as if 'subjection by the sword' were a fair description of the kind of government and administration that has been set up in any part of the Empire is curiously perverse. It ignores the aims and methods of the sovereign power, and it ignores the equally relevant consideration of what are the alternatives to the existing power. India is held by the sword, but Mr. Dickinson would not deny that the peoples of India see less of the sword under British rule than they did under native princes, that their daily lives are far more affected by the Indian civil service than by the Army, and that the aim of that service is scientific and disinterested government. Surely in judging any government it is imperative to consider what would happen if that government did not exist. Supposing the alternative to the British sword is another sword, or rather many swords in conflict, ought not that to be stated before 'subjection by the sword' is accepted as a full description or a final condemnation? It is hardly necessary to point out that no credit is given by the critics of the Empire for the modified self-government that is carried on in so many of the Dependencies.

What are to be the League of Nations tests of cases like India and Egypt and Rhodesia? They are excluded from consideration at present, but there can be no doubt that if the League becomes a reality there will be constant appeals from races within the Empire, and it will be necessary for the League to have some standard by which governments can be judged. It is quite certain that in America there will be a demand for such judgment. Is self-determination to be the one criterion? Supposing self-determination involved self-extermination, as it certainly would do in many countries if it meant the exclusion of British rule; or supposing that it involved anarchy that spread into neighboring regions, would all other considerations go by the board in order that the one test might be applied? The Covenant expressly recognises other standards in dealing with the mandatory system. "The tutelage of nations not yet able to stand by themselves will be entrusted to advanced nations who are best fitted to undertake it." It is extraordinary that Mr. Dickinson should entirely ignore this system in his reference to what England "takes" under the peace terms. All these "takings" are under the mandatory system of the League, a system set up in the interest of general peace, and it is misleading rhetoric to speak of them as if they were conquests. So long as there are nations not yet able to stand by themselves the League requires advanced nations to act as tutors and guardians. That is why the British Empire is an absolutely necessary instrument in the hands of the League. "The League," as Lord Eustace Percy has said, "can have no strength save that contributed by its independent members." The hope of a world peace would be vain and distant if there were not already a pax Britannica in the East. There are black pages in the history of the British in India, as there are black pages in all human records, but the story as a whole is one of progressive and honorable government, of work well done by many of the best men and brains of the race. Happy will be the League if its record of tutelage—which incidentally will often be "subjected to the sword" of the League in the last analysis—can equal in fruitfulness the British record in India.

Story Of Grumble Tone

BY ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

There was a boy named Grumble Tone, who ran away to sea,
"I'm sick of things on land," he said, "as sick as I can be;
A life upon the bounding wave is just the life for me!"
But the seething ocean billows failed to stimulate his mirth,
For he did not like the vessel or the dizzy, rolling berth,
And he thought the sea was almost as unpleasant as the earth.

He wandered into foreign lands; he saw each wondrous sight,
But nothing that he heard or saw seemed just exactly right,
And so he journeyed on and on, still seeking for delight.
He talked with kings and ladies grand; he dined in courts, they say,
But always found the people dull and longed to get away
To search for that mysterious land where he should want to stay.

He wandered over all the world, his hair grew white as snow;
He reached that final bourne at last where all of us must go.
But never found the land he sought; the reason would you know?
The reason was that north or south, wherever his steps were bent,
On land or sea, in court or hall, he found but discontent,
For he took his disposition with him, everywhere he went.

The Palsied Righteous

BY DR. WM. A. MCKEEVER

(Professor in the University of Kansas and an Authority on Social Problems)

I know a man who said it was "awful" that so many little children were pinched and half starved in the dingy slums of his city, but he was doing nothing to relieve them.

I know a man who remarked that "somebody certainly ought to do something to save the starving children in the Near East," but his pity had not yet reached his pocket-book.

I know a man who was in possession of "positive proof" that an organised gang of thugs was corrupting girls of his home city and standing in with the underworld for "good money and political preferment," but he never turned a hand to prevent.

I know a man who masqueraded as a Christian while he ran a big sweatshop establishment in which half-grown boys and girls were being dreadfully overworked and mistreated, but he kept the matter covered as much as possible.

I know a man who argued ably the point that there "ought to be a clean-up" in his home city for the sake of the many boys who were being taught gambling, crap shooting and petty larceny; but it never occurred to him that he was one of the guilty parties—voters, citizens—directly responsible to man and to God for such outrages against the local youth.

I know a man who can easily spend an hour explaining how the young of to-day are "thoroughly corrupt and sinful," and can explain by reference to the scriptures that these wicked youths are never to have a chance to get into the kingdom of heaven. But he quits with mere condemnation and does nothing intended to redeem the young from their so-called fallen state.

I know a woman who is cross and impatient with children, who has none of her own, but who could train any baby better than its mother can do it—if only she had charge of the matter for a short time. Three squares from her there is a baby orphanage with—at this particular date—exactly twelve little ones waiting for a foster home. But this "smart" lady goes on with her abstract lamentations, seeming not to be aware of her own sin of negligence to do her duty.

I know a woman's club which meets every Thursday afternoon at a very select, richly surrounded, card party, while over the way is a big home of the friendless, where sick, emaciated young boys and girls are supplied with the bare comforts of life, but devoutly loved by several unsalaried Sisters of Charity.

Often the fine-laced club members "have read in the papers" about the high cost of living and its hardships entailed on the poorer classes, but none of them seems ever to have heard about—much less pitied and ministered unto—the 101 little unfortunates at the orphanage.

So the world passes its troubles along and puts off till it is too late that emotion of altruism and ministering love. "Something ought to be done" is the seemingly heartfelt cry. But it is only a form of palsied good wishes. Even the wants of the children no longer stimulates the action.

Garrett P. Serviss's Article

Many Have Wrong Conceptions Of Courage And Cowardice —How Heredity, Physical Strength And Moral Stamina Figure

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS

"What is cowardice? What makes a young man afraid of being punched in a fight, and what makes him receive bruises from any other source without a whimper? Is it a heredity, or does it become part of a person after birth by the environment or circumstances? By answering you will oblige, and might help one.—B. R."

To bear pain unflinchingly after it has been inflicted and can no longer be avoided is not courage but fortitude, or power of endurance. This is a quality that may be notably strong in a person who would show cowardice in the face of danger. A coward is defined as "one who dreads pain or harm unduly" or "one who yields to fear." However, the application of the term cowardice under these definitions must be determined by circumstances.

The question of duty to oneself and to others comes in. Prudence has its claims, and there are cases in which obedience to those claims may involve a higher courage than disregard of them. "He who fights and runs away may live to fight another day." There is sound philosophy in that old saying. To recognise when you are defeated, but to hold firm to your cause and resolve by retreating to preserve the means of retrieving it, that is the meaning.

Courage may run wild, shutting the eyes to consequences. The bravest soldier, when absolutely overmatched and with no chance whatever of killing, or disabling his foe, may help his cause more by surrendering than by recklessly sacrificing his life. Probably a greater strain is never put upon human nature than is demanded for the instant solution of that question.

MUST DECIDE QUICKLY

A man may surrender through cowardice, or through error, or through a correct solution of the problem of prudence. It is all done in a second, and when it is done the prisoner, if a truly brave man, perceiving that he has yielded unnecessarily, will curse his error; but a coward will see no error.

Courage is a quality ascribed to the heart. A courageous man has a "stout heart," and a strong circulation of the blood. But back of this physical quality stands a moral one of a more enduring nature. Wise old Solomon, the Shakespeare of proverbial literature, has fixed the formula in a pictorial sentence: "The wicked flee when no man pursueth, but the righteous are bold as a lion."

And Shakespeare himself has given the pendant: "Thus conscience (inmost thoughts) doth make cowards of us all."

But another pendant is needed to make the case complete, and the poet Crabbe has furnished it: "The coward never on himself relies."

There you have, putting these three sentences together, nearly the whole philosophy of cowardice and courage. If you feel that you are right you face not merely only danger, but odds, unshrinking. That is the strength which steadies the policeman, pushing his way through an angry mob, or collaring an armed malefactor.

CONFIDENCE IN ABILITY

If you feel confidence in your nerves and muscles, your agility and training, you are not afraid, as you probably would be if you distrusted your fighting ability.

And, thirdly, if, like Hamlet, you have been stirring up the waters of your spirit from the bottom, only to find them muddied with irresolution, uncertainty, doubt, self-criticism, conscious weakness, you are in no condition for a courageous undertaking. But this goes deeper than the simple case of the young man "afraid of being punched in a fight," although all these things are akin.

How far heredity is concerned in the possession of the quality of courage by any person I am unable to say—heredity is a difficult subject. But I am sure that environment has much to do in the matter. The influence of example goes far. If you see some other boy "take his punishment" manfully, his conduct will strengthen your own spirit, unless you are indeed, hopelessly "chicken-livered." I would not by any means advocate fighting, but the boy who reaches manhood without ever having employed his fists to defend himself, or to see right done is poorly prepared for the stage of this energetic world.

THE SCHOOLYARD TEST

There is a great deal of sound common sense behind the traditional touchstone of the schoolyards, the experimentum crucis; by which the stamina of a new boy is (or used to be) tested, viz: the "coward's blow," the response to which fixes the newcomer's status. This very test is often in itself educational, breeding, or developing latent courage through the effects of shame.

As a bit of practical advice I would suggest to the boy who finds difficulty in collecting his courage, in the face of opposing fists, that he should not let his imagination become the ally of his antagonist. If he can bear bruises from other sources "without a whimper" he ought not to run from a fist as from a lion. But this is a deep question, and keeping out of a fight often requires more courage than joining in it. If you know you can fight, then don't, unless you have to.

GREEK DANCE AT WASH TUB

London, April 14.—Housewives need no longer despair of the drudgery of the washtub. It is really a "kind of Greek dance," according to Miss Elisabeth Benton, herself a Greek dancer and also a noble exponent of that servant-saving problem—doing one's own washing once in a while. She says:

"When I have no maid I use the rhythmic movements in doing housework. I wash all my own dresses, and the washing is a kind of Greek dance. I have doubled my energy since I have learned the movements. Even in the matter of taking a kettle from the fire energy can be saved. The ordinary woman bends to lift it but I stoop with my whole body.

"I find that the Greek movements give the keynote to everything. They teach the economy of energy, concentration and balance. I learned weaving as a development of the Greek movements."
